

Young people and sexual health: Information about blood borne viruses for youth workers

Queensland Positive Speakers Bureau (QPSB) and Family Planning Queensland (FPQ) have developed a partnership to provide a comprehensive and holistic approach to professional development in sexual health.

FPQ will provide information, strategies and resources to assist workers to communicate positively with young people about sexuality and sexual health.

- Sexual activity and young people
- Strategies for engaging young people in conversations about sexual health
- Overview of blood borne viruses and STIs
- Resources

The QPSB recognises the unique perspectives that a person living with HIV or viral hepatitis can bring to an education session and the incredible impact that a real life story can have.

Two professional speakers from the QPSB will present on their personal experiences of:

- Community attitudes and social implications, including discrimination and stigma
- Support services and client needs from services
- Confidentiality and privacy
- There will also be time allocated for group discussions and questions to the speakers.
