

Accolade for Assistant Commissioner

Assistant Commissioner Barry Salmon receiving his award from Family Planning Queensland CEO Christopher Macaulay

Assistant Commissioner Barry Salmon has been inducted into Family Planning Queensland's Roll of Honour for his substantial contributions to sexuality education in Queensland.

Mr Salmon was recognised for his involvement in the development of early sexuality education programs and his continued advocacy work in getting the voices of children and young people heard.

Prior to joining the Commission in 2001, Mr Salmon was a teacher and has over 25 years experience in supporting young people, teachers and administrators in Queensland schools.

He received his award from FPQ's Chief Executive Officer Christopher Macauley at a special ceremony on 14 October 2009 celebrating 21 years of sexuality education in Queensland schools.

Commissioner Elizabeth Fraser congratulated Mr Salmon on his award and his continued perseverance in advocating in the best interests of children and young people.

"Barry has become a children and young people's advocate in the field of sexuality education and has worked tremendously hard over the years promoting the importance of access to sexuality education for all children in Queensland," Ms Fraser said.
